All hogs, goats, and lambs will show under a declared weight through submission of a weight card. Exhibitors are responsible for weighing their own animals, whether at home or on the check scale at the Show and then declaring that weight on the cards. Exhibitors must fill out and turn in the weight card at check-in with a called/declared weight. This will become the animal's official weight. All market animals will be divided into classes according to weight after check-in. Exhibitors can pick up weigh cards at the Livestock Office, or cards will be present at check-in. The top three (or more, at the Show's discretion) placing animals in each class for market lamb, goat, and hog classes will be weighed immediately after class placings are announced. No reweighs will be allowed once the animal has stepped off the scale. A variance of 5 percent from the weight declared will be allowed. All animals outside of the 5 percent tolerance will be disqualified.
